

TECHNOLOGY RIGHTS AGREEMENT OF 2019

The Thomas Corporation (“Thomas”) and Alef Incorporated (“Alef”), understanding their influence over the telecommunications industry, and in an attempt to build their relationship, have come together to sign this pledge. These two companies and all undersigned agree to the following:

Thomas is the sole owner of Ren Industries (“Ren”), Telogy Incorporated (“Telogy”), and Azulrai Studios (formerly GusWare). Their intellectual property includes but is not limited to the Azul brand of products, Horizon City outside of governmental affairs, Ayuda, and both azulOS and AeonOS.

Alef is the sole owner of Alef Computer (“Alef”), Briyut, Alef X, AV (“Alef Ventures”), and Yacha, and holder of a controlling stake in Alef Rosengarten. Their intellectual property includes but is not limited to mKarna and Latem phones and related tablets and computers, the Robotic Home Buddy (“RHB”), and Alef OS.

Despite originally creating and using the code as intellectual property, Amica is now considered open-source and is managed, not owned, by Thomas.

The concept of Artificial Intelligence (“AI”) is considered open intellectual property, though the form of each AI will be the intellectual property of their respective creator.

Technology is meant to be used by all people, in all walks of life. Essential technology is defined as technology that enriches the life of the user, physically, mentally, or emotionally. This includes phones, tablets, and computers.

Essential technology exported and imported by the undersigned cannot be given extra tariffs or blocked from entry into the nation without substantial evidence given to prove these devices are harming instead of helping the citizens of said nation or the company is in violation of a nation’s law or policy.
